PRESS RELEASE

METROPOLITAN CURATOR TO TALK AT ART MUSEUM

On Wednesday, March 12, at 5:45 pm, Clare Le Corbeiller will discuss French porcelains so popular with collectors--the pieces made in the 18th century in three factories near Paris: Mennecy, St. Cloud, and Chantilly. She is associate curator of European sculpture and decorative arts at The Metropolitan Museum, New York, and an expert on French 18th-century porcelain. Her lecture is free and open to the public, part of a free spring series at The Cleveland Museum of Art on the second Wednesday of each month. An informal reception will follow the lecture.
